The Tennessee Baptist Children's Home, on Stratford Road in Kingsport, continues to encourage you to come by and visit or call to see how you can continue to support us as we minister to children and families in crisis who do not realize there is hope. We, as well as not everyone else, are immune to the economic situation, and with a house full of teenagers, there are always needs ranging from operating costs to extra paper towels. No gift or ability is too small. For more information, please call the group home at 378-5921 and leave a message if you get the machine or call our program director, Marla Freeman, at 741-6273.

“Live With Urgency: Sowing Together for the Harvest”

You've probably experienced it. The storm rolled in without warning. You made a dash for inside. Maybe you were too late and got soaked. Maybe you made it with seconds to spare. Either way, you moved with urgency, knowing what would happen if you didn't!

Try to imagine the consequences that face more than 251 million people in North America who are lost. They are truly caught in a great storm – hopeless – unless we tell them about Jesus and they decide to run into His loving arms. Southern Baptists must live with urgency to sow down the gospel.

Jesus gives us the mandate to go, but He also says we need to do it together. We must sow together for harvest, sharing the gospel with everyone, everywhere, and by every means possible. More than 5,500 North American missionaries are working alongside your church in the field, sowing with a passion and commitment to serve Christ in all they do. They are reaping a great harvest; however, more missionaries are needed if we are to fulfill the Great Commission. Your generous gifts to the Annie Armstrong Offering allow them to saturate the fields with seeds of the gospel for God's glory.

Please pray that Southern Baptists will see the mission field that is North America and join in living with urgency, sowing together for the harvest.
